Contamination in Water.

Tuesday State Chemist J. H. Newlands of Middletown sent H. S. Moulton, superintendent of the city water department, this summary of his analysis of the city water for January:

"The sample this month is less colored than the one examined last time but the water is more turbid and possesses a decided krasny odor.

Figures for organic constituents do not differ materially from those of the last sample and the chlorine figure is normal for that region. The number of bacteria are low, but colon counts were in one-tenth of a cube centimeter volumes of the water.

This water is receiving contamination more or less intermittently and is not a safe supply for drinking purposes under existing conditions."

OBITUARY.

SUFFRAGISTS RAISE BANNER.

Open Headquarters in a Vacant Store on Church Street—Miss Persen Gets

Woman's Club Interested.

Three young women working with plenty of ropes and plenty of ingeni-uity, threw a purple, white and green banner across Church street Tuesday

By eight o'clock Tuesday night they not only had the flag swinging in the breeze across the street, they had also a sign on the building which read and again a device which read "Votes for women."

Tuesday when the suffragists were not at work on their flag they were holding a meeting in the rooms, running a silent speech in a drug store window on Main street, giving out not free literature, factory gates and otherwise disporting themselves.

The Willimantic women's club heard the matter of suffrage discussed Tuesday afternoon by Miss Emily Persen, manager of the campaign party and by Miss Alice Gregory of Norwich.

The club women were much interested in the question of the ignorant vote and a number of women asked if it would be advisable to let ignorant women have the ballot. Miss Persen replied by telling the story of a young girl from the slums of New York who when asked what she thought about woman suffrage said she believed in it but she was afraid of the ignorant vote.

Someone asked her what she meant by the ignorant class and she replied quite frankly: "I mean that fifth avenue crowd." There was a general laugh during which Miss Persen added that the lack of an education did not always mean ignorance. Many of the club women signified their willingness to join the suffrage ranks and membership slips at the close of the meeting.

The campaigners are addressing labor unions, prayer meetings and various clubs and leagues. They expect to hold outdoor meetings at the factories as soon as the weather gets warm, in the meantime they take the cards that form the voiceless speech, set them up on an easel in the roadway at a factory gate and begin to turn them to show the various arguments as soon as the bell rings for the hour.

Miss Clara Hill, daughter of Congressman E. J. Hill, has returned to the campaign after spending a week at home ill with grip. Mrs. William F. Hinkley, bridge president of the state suffrage association, will join the party here the last of the week to help with the speaking before clubs.

The mass meeting which is the big event of the suffrage week is to be held Thursday night at Loomer Opera house. Mrs. Carlos Stoddard of New Haven is the speaker. The campaigners will remain until Saturday.

Miss Hunt Resigns School, Though Not

Released.

Monday Miss Florence I. Hunt, a teacher in the school at North Windham, notified the school committee that she had received a more satisfactory offer with more promising opportunities from New Britain, and requested that she be released from her position. The school committee has agreed to her request and she will retire on the date mentioned. This makes it necessary for the teachers to commence their duties on Monday.
